Spectrum's Demise...

Out at the school field putting the Spectrum up. Been a while since I had flown it with Double Star .61 tugging it along. I bought this plane from Tom when he bought some planes from a guy in Boise, Idaho. As I was nearing end of rich-running flight the line snapped at bell crank. The plane was looping and looping. Try as I may to get it to land flat, it stuck itself like an Jart (look that up!) We were all surprised to see such a tiny bell crank in such a big plane. I have no idea when this plane was built but I mourn not being able to get to know it better. But a bit more space in my Nut-Hut now.
